Ben Kong, Senior Vice President, Specialist and Head of Chinese Paintings at Christie's, commented, "The results from the Modern and Classical Chinese Paintings indicate a consistent demand from collectors for top quality and rare works with important provenance that are sourced from around the world. The strength of the market is clear from the large proportion of sold lots over the high estimate at 70% at both sales, with some exceeding the high estimate by six or seven times. These strong results reflect the continued appeal of, and the robust market for the Chinese Paintings category."
