COMMENT: Noël Annesley, Senior International Specialist, and William O'Reilly, Head of New York Sales, Christie's International Old Master and 19th Century Drawings Department:

"While we were disappointed that the Michelangelo did not find a buyer, we were otherwise very pleased with the result of the sale. Over three quarters of the lots sold above their collective estimate, and the auction showed a healthy demand across all sectors of the market. We look forward to our next sale in Paris on 23 March, which already features an attractive selection from many periods and schools."
