Pola Antebi, Senior Vice President, Specialist Head of the Chinese Ceramics & Works of Art Department, Christie's said: "We are delighted with the results of today's sale, which was the most successful jade auction ever held, and a triumphant conclusion to the two-part series of the sales of Alan and Simone Hartman's jades. The second and final part of this private collection saw record sale prices achieved, with the majority of the lots far surpassing their high estimates. The top lot established a new world record for a jade carving, demonstrating the tremendous interest in this collecting category. In a packed room there was very enthusiastic international participation – both on the phone and in the room. The sale is a testament to the well-known and respected collectors who amassed this remarkable collection over the last 40 years."
