New York- Christie's announces two Antiquities sales to be offered starting from December 1 to 10, which will feature a comprehensive selection of works from across the ancient worlds of Greece, Rome, Egypt, the Near East and beyond. On December 9, the Antiquities sale will be led by an Egyptian grano-diorite torso of an official, a Sumerian copper bowl with an intricate animal relief, a significant group of over life-sized body parts, including bronze heads, a Roman marble head and a colossal marble hand. These highlights will be joined by Part II of the Elias S. David Collection, including a group of bronzes and a Roman marble head of Jupiter.

In addition, Christie's Digital Sales will offer the 17th annual Ancient Jewelry sale dedicated to exquisite wearable works of art, the first year on Christie's online-only sale platform from December 1- 10. The sale will feature necklaces, rings, earrings and bracelets from all corners of the ancient world from the 3rd millennium B.C. through to the 1st millennium A.D. with accessible price points range from $1000 to $35,000. The jewelry will be displayed concurrently with the Antiquities sale preview, from December 5-8.
