About Médecins Sans Frontières/Doctors Without Borders (MSF)

Médecins Sans Frontières/Doctors Without Borders (MSF) is the world's largest emergency medical humanitarian aid organisation. We provide medical aid where it is needed most, during wars, conflicts, epidemics, following natural disasters or where people do not otherwise have access to healthcare. We have a strict no guns policy in our clinics and will treat anyone who needs medical care regardless of who they are, where they come from, their religion or political affiliation.

MSF was founded more than 40 years ago by journalists and doctors to provide medical care and to speak out about the suffering that we witnessed in the course of our work. We now have more than 30,000 people working in more than 60 countries around the world. In 2014 MSF teams provided 8,250,700 outpatient consultations and assisted 194,400 women to give birth.

We spend 80% of the money that we raise on our projects in the field, and only 6% goes towards our management and administration costs. The remaining money goes towards generating fundraising to support our work. Because 89% of our fundraising comes from private sources, we can move fast in an emergency and be ready to go when people need us.

About UNMAS

The United Nations goes where no one else goes. It provides food to 90 million people in 80 countries, vaccinates 58 per cent of the world's children, assists over 38 million refugees and people fleeing war, famine or persecution and deploys 120,000 peacekeepers in 16 operations on four continents. All this work comes to a standstill when explosive hazards block the way.

The United Nations Mine Action Service known as UNMAS leads in surveying and clearing explosive hazards from airports, roads, bridges and borders. UNMAS reacts rapidly, capable of deploying technical experts and equipment within days. UNMAS coordinates emergency humanitarian mine action activities to increase the impact of the international response and ensure coherent allocation of resources.

UNMAS is mandated to manage the United Nations Voluntary Trust Fund for Assistance in Mine Action, the UN mechanism to direct funding to United Nations partners, national mine action entities and non-governmental organizations. For more information: UNMAS.org
